STORAGE AND STUDY OF LIFE ITSELF

Life itself, in the form of refrigerated plasma, is the vital commodity at the Kelowna General Hospital blood bank. Laboratory technician Douglas Hannan, checks supply against never-ending demand in the ceaseless battle to "keep ahead" of the urgent need for this precious life-giving liquid. Only through Canadian Red Cross sponsored blood donor clinics and year-round volunteer donations can the hospital be assured of an adequate supply of the vital fluid. The local branch of the Red Cross opens its spring three-day clinic today at the Anglican Parish Hall from 1 to 4 p.m. and 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Free transportation and baby-sitting service is provided during clinic hours. — (Courier Photo)

Not All MLAs Convinced About Ban On Alcohol Ads

VICTORIA (CP)—The British Columbia legislature was unanimous Monday night in deciding that tobacco advertising is bad, but there was some disagreement on whether the same could be said of liquor, beer and wine advertisements.

The house gave unanimous approval to second reading—approval in principle—of the tobacco restraint act. It also approved second reading of legislation banning advertising of alcoholic beverages, but it was clear during a two-hour debate that not all members approved on this section of an omnibus bill entitled the statute law amendment act.

The legislation, which would ban all liquor and tobacco advertising in the province effective Sept. 1, was introduced Friday.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said the purpose of the ban is to counter the power of advertising.

"Advertising is such a high science that you can get people to do almost anything with advertising," said the 70-year-old premier, a non-smoker and non-drinker.

ATTACK ON PUSHERS
He said the legislation is an attack on the "pushers" of liquor and tobacco, not only for the young people of today but "for the youth unborn." Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre), whose family owns Calona Wines Ltd., took exception to the term "pusher" being applied to the liquor industry. "This is an insult to the industry," he said, and added that those in the brewery, winery and distillery business have done their share to develop the province and have never done anything unlawful.

Mr. Capozzi said he would abstain from the vote on the bill because of his family interest in the industry. He added that it was to his family's interest to have the bill passed because the legislation would in effect guarantee them their established place in the wine business in B.C.

"The ban on advertising will protect the status quo and eliminate many small companies,"

NOT TO DICTATE
Opening the debate on tobacco advertising, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said the "total prohibition of advertising tobacco products" is being undertaken by the government not to dictate to people whether or not they should smoke, but to reduce the intensity of propaganda presented in favor of smoking even though evidence is that it is harmful. It seems that the more evidence that is presented on the harmful effects of smoking, he said, the greater effort is made by those in the advertising business to create the opposite impression.

Dave Barrett, leader of the opposition New Democratic Party, said tobacco is one product which has been the focus of the "best brains and the best hucksterism" of Madison Avenue.

IMAGE BILL
Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay) said the legislation is a "nice image bill," but it would not stop people from smoking. He also criticized the fact that there are no penalties in the bill for those found guilty of breaking the law. Without such penalties, the bill "is not worth the paper it is written on because the big companies are not going to listen if there are no penalties," he said.

Air Crash Kills 5
SUDBURY, Ont. (CP)—Five Sudbury-area men were killed Monday when their plane crashed into an ice-covered lake on the way home from a fishing trip about 60 miles northwest of here.

Provincial police said the single-engine Cessna 180 crashed into Bannerman Lake in the Poga-masing area during a snowstorm.

Four of the dead were identified as pilot Charles Armstrong, Kenneth Cameron and George Tejrina, all of Sudbury, and Leonard Thompson of nearby Val Caron.

The name of the fifth person was not immediately released by police.

Plane Missing In South B.C.
CAMPBELL RIVER, B.C. (CP)—A float plane with two men aboard was reported missing Monday on a flight along the southern British Columbia coast.

The Trans Mountain Air Services Cessna 180 from Campbell River was piloted by Gordon June, 39, and was carrying a passenger identified only as H. Young. Both men were reported to be from Campbell River.

An air search begun late Monday afternoon was to resume today, joined by a Canadian Coast Guard cutter.

Rail Talks Set Today

VANCOUVER (CP)—Talks aimed at settling a railway work stoppage that has paralysed traffic in British Columbia and threatens to close the port of Vancouver were scheduled here today.

Contract negotiations in which the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National promised to "negotiate to a conclusion" were to be held in Montreal.

Don Tysoe, a federal mediator, and Ray Perrault, parliamentary secretary to Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey, were to meet in Vancouver with engineers who have been booking off sick in British Columbia and Alberta to protest delay in the contract negotiations.

Mr. Tysoe said in an interview Monday: "The name of the game is to get the men to listen to reason and return to work."

Eleven men have been forced to leave work in Kelowna as a result of railway engineers' bookoffs throughout the province, a CN official said today.

More layoffs could continue if the bookoffs expand, he said, adding in Kelowna 14 CN employees are still on the job.

There is one Kelowna engineer involved in the bookoffs but he is based in Kamloops. Company officials said senior company and union officials were to meet in Montreal today to reach a settlement in the dispute.

Currently only British Columbia is affected by the bookoffs, but the railways have halted all passenger rail service to B.C. in Edmonton and Calgary.

Pollution Grant Made To City

The provincial and federal governments have allocated $50,000 for a pilot plant at the pollution control centre here, city operations director E. F. Lawrence disclosed Monday night.

He said he was given this information verbally while in Victoria last week. Further details were expected to be released today.

"This will enable us to evaluate the effectiveness of pollution control measures," added Mr. Lawrence.

CAPRI MYSTERY
Police are investigating an apparent attempt to steal a bag containing money from a messenger from Shops Capri, Kelowna, about 3 p.m. Monday. They said a male accosted the messenger. Police have declined to release further information.

Richter's Bill 'Sloppy' Says Opposition Chief

VICTORIA (CP)—Opposition Leader Dave Barrett told the legislature Monday that Mines Minister Frank Richter made a sloppy presentation without knowing the details behind a bill he has introduced.

The bill allows 17 mineral claims in the Revelstoke mining division of the Kootenay land district to be returned to Sunshine Comstock Mines Ltd., a company suspended from the Vancouver Stock Exchange more than a year ago.

Sunshine Comstock Mines had its books seized by the RCMP after an investigation by British Columbia's Securities Commission. The company's principal, George Groves Sr., and his son were charged with theft of its assets.

Debate on second reading of the bill was adjourned after Mr. Barrett's comments.

Regatta Parade Changes Route

The Kelowna International Regatta parade route, normally from Martin Elementary to City Park via Bernard Avenue, will be altered, directors were told Monday.

Frank Reiter, and Wayne Schaad, representing Kelowna Jaycees, said after complications with last year's parade, they decided to alter the parade route.

The parade would begin at Glenmore Street and wind its way down Bernard to Water Street, then proceed on Water past City Hall to disperse at the seaplane base.

Regatta officials earlier expressed a desire to see a change in the parade dispersal point, with the seaplane base as an alternative to the park.

It was noted the route is only a proposal, not the final decision.

A reviewing stand could be erected at City Hall where VIPs could watch the parade.

Mr. Reiter said the parade committee of which Mr. Schaad is chairman, would stress quality rather than quantity.

"We plan to be more selective in choosing the entrants in the parade," he said.

"Instead of having a number of convertibles carrying VIPs and visiting royalty, visiting royalty would be restricted to those accompanied by a float."

Regatta directors had discussed a similar proposal among themselves for some time.

Other changes would see the minimum age for participating set at 12 years, with some displays advised not to create a disturbance.

Last year, a number of speedsters raced their engines while their vehicles were being towed.

RESIGNS LATER

This year they will be told to keep the switches off.

Darryl Ruff, who later submitted his resignation, suggested changing the parade's starting time and date.

His suggestions include changing the time from 6 p.m. Wednesday to a morning time as is done in a number of larger Canadian centres, primarily in Calgary, Edmonton and Saskatoon where the fair's parades are held in the morning.

His second proposal including changing the date to Friday night so Regatta could capitalize on bands and floats visiting Penticton Peach Festival, which is being held at the same time.

Battle Over Says Pakistan

KARACHI (Reuters)—The official Pakistan Radio denied today Indian reports of continued fighting in dissident East Pakistan.

The broadcast here, more than 1,000 miles away from the rebellious eastern half of the country, said there is complete calm in the towns of Dacca, Comilla, Jessore, Rangpur and Khulna, as well as other centres.

"There is no truth in the false and malicious reports circulated by Indian news agencies and New Delhi radio concerning untoward incidents in these places," the radio said.

Canadian Political Activist Slain

PARIS (AP)—A man believed to be a Canadian political activist was found beaten to death in a friend's apartment near the Flea Market, police reported today. They said the only immediate identity for the youth was the name Francois Buchand.

China Gets First Hijacked Airliner

HONG KONG (AP)—Five young men hijacked a Philippine airliner to Communist China today. The plane, its 23 passengers and five crew members were expected to be returned quickly. It was the first airliner hijacked to Red China.

Save-Our-Park Protests Followed By Another Look

The city building committee was asked by Kelowna council Monday to investigate sites other than City Park for a community complex.

On recommendation of several architects, the committee suggested a community recreation building and a retired citizens' activity centre be erected in the park. This has aroused a storm of protest, culminating in forming a Save Our Park Action Group.

The resolution, passed unanimously, asks the committee to consider building an aquatic pavilion on the park lakeshore; a retired citizens' activity centre on the yacht club property, and a community centre on city-owned property on Highway 97 near Burtech Road.

The committee is asked to report on these ideas at a public meeting April 8. This will be the first meeting arranged by council and the chamber of commerce to discuss the complex.

Council also gave final reading to a bylaw to borrow $750,000 towards the $1,040,000 estimated cost of the complex from the special federal-provincial loan fund. The balance will be from insurance paid when the Aquatic building was destroyed by fire in 1969.

Meanwhile, the 'Save Our Park Action Group' is continuing efforts to have the complex put somewhere other than in the park.

Mrs. W. J. MacKenzie and R. D. Prosser presented more petitions and cards signed by people opposing the park location suggested by the building committee.

The group has collected more than 5,000 signatures.

Community Planners Agree

"We were greatly encouraged by comments made last week by an official of the Community Planning Association of Canada, that park space should be preserved," said Mrs. MacKenzie.

About 100 adults and young people attended the Monday council meeting. When a young lady asked if the oval and tennis courts were to be removed, she was advised to attend the public meeting.

Ald. W. J. C. Kane said he was "very heartened to see this rather visible display of democracy in action," but that information should be given at the meeting.

"We're not stalling," claimed Ald. S. A. Hodge. "We just want to have all the facts to give you."

Mayor Hilbert Roth backed up their comments, saying people who gathered signatures were misinformed. "The city won't commit taxpayers to a project they don't want," he maintained.

To Maurice L. Reveryrand, another group member, Ald. Kane said the city has no binding commitment with anyone for the complex in the park.

However, at the March 15 meeting, council authorized architects to proceed with preliminary drawings and estimates for the complex, and approved a memorandum of understanding with landscape architect Eric Clough to make preliminary sketch plans for developing the park.

The commitment with the architectural consortium amounts to about six per cent of the total cost of the project while that with Mr. Clough is believed to be in the neighborhood of $4,000.

Gas Chamber Recommended For Manson And His Family

LOS ANGELES (Reuters)—Extra guards were posted at the Hall of Justice here today amid threats of reprisals after a jury recommended that Charles Manson and three women followers be sent to the gas chamber.

Additional guards moved in almost immediately after the jury delivered its death-sentence recommendations for the convicted killers of actress Sharon Tate, four friends and a middle-aged married couple.

Judge Charles Older, prosecutor Vincent Bugliosi, and jury members were escorted to their homes by special sheriff's deputies.

Manson threatened last week that if he were sentenced to death "murder and bloodshed would follow."

LED AWAY SCREAMING

In the courtroom Monday, as the jury returned its verdict in the penalty phase of the 10-month-old trial, defendant Susan Atkins, 22, was led away screaming: "Look your doors. Watch your kids. It's gonna come down hard."

Patricia Krenwinkel, 23, shouted: "The whole system is a game." And 21-year-old Leslie van Houten yelled at the court: "You've all just judged yourselves. Watch your children." Manson yelled at Judge Older: "You don't have any authority over me. Half of you aren't even as good as me." He was led from the court before the verdicts were read. The girl defendants broke into shouts of "Judge yourselves!" and "You're all blind." They also were taken from the courtroom before they heard the verdicts.

Polling of the jurors and reading of the verdicts took about 30 minutes, climaxing a marathon $950,000 trial for the brutal murders in August, 1969.

Formal sentencing for the defendants is scheduled for April 19, at which time Judge Older can reduce the penalty to life imprisonment if he wishes.

ALL THEIR FAULT HE HAD TO WAIT

FREDERICTON (CP)—The man standing in line for his 1971 motor vehicle registration early today was indignant.

Looking over the line of motorists who had waited until the day before the March 31 deadline, he said: "I don't know what's wrong with people. If they got their stickers earlier, I wouldn't have to stand in line."

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock market prices edged up and down in moderate trading this morning. The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 0.47 at 903.95.

Calley Returns To Courtroom For Life-Or-Death Sentence

FORT BENNING, Ga. (AP)—Bright-eyed and cheerful after his first night in the stockade, Lieut. William Calley Jr. returned to the courtroom today for a sentence of life or death that can be tempered only by a long string of reviewing authorities.

He was escorted by six military policemen to the little one-story courthouse where a jury of six combat officers convicted him Monday of murdering at least 22 civilians in the blood bath of My Lai.

Lawyers were in court this morning to work with the military judge on instructions he'll give to the jury. The arguments on the sentence were to begin at 1 p.m. and were likely to be concluded today.

During the night someone threw a bottle of gasoline at the courthouse where Calley's trial spanned the seasons from autumn into spring. The bottle landed on the lawn and burned only a small patch of grass.

Calley, of Miami, Fla., took the jury's decision with head high, his manner soldierly correct. But he was shaken by a verdict he didn't expect.

The night in the stockade's private officers' quarters—in a two-room suite—was Calley's first time in confinement since he was charged one and a half years ago.

Group Set Up To Study Seal Hunt

The federal government has established an international group to study the controversial seal hunt off Canada's Atlantic coast, Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said Monday in Vancouver. The minister announced the move while speaking to a group of demonstrators protesting the annual seal killing.

Prof. Keith Bond of the department of zoology, University of Guelph, is chairman of the body, which is already gathering information.

Dale Merle Nelson discovered the quality and courage of the RCMP while being "hunted" by them, says a handwritten statement read in Cranbrook court Monday at his non-capital murder trial. Nelson said he had looked upon the RCMP "as a spineless, backstabbing bunch of bastards" and had taught his children to fear and ridicule them. He changed his opinion while watching members of the force search for him. He said he could only stare in fascination as a corporal walked calmly towards him during his capture. He added he could not bring himself to shoot even though his rifle was at hand.

nominee. Similarly, Canada has accepted the candidate proposed by Peking as its first ambassador in Ottawa.

Air Marshal Hardan Takriti, dismissed as vice-president of Iraq in October, was assassinated in Kuwait today, Arab diplomatic sources said in Beirut. The sources said three gunmen opened fire as Takriti entered the government hospital in Kuwait accompanied by the Iraqi ambassador. Takriti, who went into exile in Algeria after being stripped of office in October, had been staying in Kuwait as guest of the ambassador.

Police moved into a rugged canyon area Monday near Ventura, Calif., to bring out the badly-decomposed body of "a large man" which they said they believe is that of missing Tate murder-trial lawyer Ronald Hughes. The body was found Saturday by two hikers, but it took them until Sunday night to trek out of the rugged region to telephone police.

New technical standards designed to assure a better signal for subscribers of cable television systems were tabled in the Commons Monday by Communications Minister Eric Klerans, in Ottawa. The new communications department standards will be applied gradually to the 350 existing cable systems in Canada. New systems will be judged by the standards immediately.

The parents of a two-year-old girl who was killed in a fire near Hope Nov. 15 were each given two-year suspended sentences Monday on charges of child abandonment. John and Audrey Peters pleaded guilty to the charges March 15, after pleading not guilty. Both Peters were one of six children left unattended in the frame home at which fire broke out during the night. The others escaped the blaze.

The state department has indefinitely suspended the credentials of two foreign newspaper correspondents, including a Canadian, because they printed material from a foreign policy report by State Secretary William Rogers in advance of release time. Department officials said Monday in Washington the department credentials of Aaron Eliafrank, of the Toronto Telegram, and Young Song, of the Orient Press, South Korea, were lifted because they broke the embargo.

William Olla, 29, an Alaska Highway resident, was killed when a car went out of control at Mile 196 of the Alaska Highway near Fort Nelson and crashed head-on with a semi-trailer truck.

Ivan Joseph Papequash, 23, believed to be from Kamsack, Sask., was killed Sunday when the car he was driving left the road and crashed into a power pole and trees. Police said the accident occurred five miles north of Cranbrook.

Funeral service was to be held in Toronto today for Eric Senior, found dead in a Windsor, N.S. motel room Friday. RCMP said the cause of Mr. Senior's death was not yet known, but foul play was not suspected.

Pope Paul is suffering from a cold but apparently it is not serious enough to force cancellation of his regular general audience Wednesday, the Vatican spokesman said today. The spokesman, Federico Alessandrini, said the audience in St. Peter's Basilica was still scheduled.

Soviet police searched the home of Vladimir Bukovsky, a prominent member of Moscow's small dissident community, Monday night and arrested him, dissident sources reported. It appeared part of a crackdown on dissident activity before the opening today of the Soviet Communist Party's 24th congress.

Australia will withdraw about 1,000 of its 7,000 men from South Vietnam in four to six months from next May, Prime Minister William McMahon announced today in Canberra.

British Army Inspects Alberta

OTTAWA (CP) — A British military reconnaissance team began a two-day inspection visit Monday to the defence research board establishment at Suffield, Alta.

The British Army is interested in using part of the 1,000 square-mile area as a training base for tank units, though no formal request has yet been made to the Canadian government, a defence department source said.

S. Vietnamese Armor Smashes Red Regiment Killing 225

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese armored cavalrymen and rangers plowed into a Communist regiment near the huge Chup plantation in Cambodia and reported 225 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed "with the aid of artillery and air support."

A communique said two South Vietnamese were killed and 25 wounded in the five-hour battle Monday afternoon outside the town of Suong.

In another development, Fire Base Mary Ann south of Da Nang was shelled again during the night, but the U.S. command said there were no more American casualties. In a devastating sapper attack on the base early Sunday, at least 33 Americans were killed and 76 wounded. The base's command bunker was knocked out and virtually all of its officers killed or wounded.

Farther north, a U.S. artillery unit pulling out of the Khe Sanh base was ambushed on the edge of the Khe Sanh plateau. Two Americans were reported killed and eight wounded.

The artillery unit was one of many U.S. outfits that have been pulling out of the Khe Sanh area after supporting the South Vietnamese drive into Laos. Military sources said they expect all U.S. ground forces to be out of the area by the end of the week.

Soviet Asks Nuclear Powers To Confer About Arms Cuts

GENEVA (Reuter) — The Soviet Union and its allies today tabled a draft convention to ban biological warfare which they said is aimed at ending a deadlock in the 23-nation Geneva disarmament conference on biological and chemical weapons.

The new draft would ban biological weapons separately first, thus dropping previous Soviet insistence on outlawing them together with chemical weapons in one composite agreement.

The new Soviet-sponsored draft was immediately welcomed outside the conference hall by officials of the United States and British delegations.

They, together with other Western delegations here, have been backing a British draft which would also ban germ weapons separately first.

Spur Given U.K. Economy

LONDON (CP) — Higher old-age pensions and lower corporation income taxes were among changes announced by Anthony Barber today as he sought to apply a stimulus to Britain's sluggish economy.

Launching one of the longest budget speeches, since the Second World War, Barber, the chancellor of the exchequer, also promised far-reaching tax reform during the next few years.

He said this reform will simplify Britain's complicated tax system and reduce the over-all burden.

Old-age pensions, now £5 a week for a single person and £8 10 new pence for a married couple, will rise next September by £1 for a single person and £1 60 new pence for a couple.

The pound is worth about $2.40 in Canadian funds. A new pence is worth about 2.4 cents Canadian.

Few Complete French Courses

OTTAWA (CP) — Only 2,000 of 22,000 public servants who started the government's second-language training courses finished them, the Commons committee on miscellaneous estimates was told today.

John Carson, chairman of the public service commission, said a number of factors accounted for the high dropout rate including "weak motivation."

Outside the committee room, Mr. Carson told reporters that language training will have cost the government about $30 million by the end of the 1971 fiscal year.

He also noted that the low graduation figures could be explained in that until 1968, the courses were on the basis of an hour a day. Now that the government offers intensive training, more success is expected.

Mr. Carson said he knew of 20 graduates who had been promoted to high posts as a result of becoming bilingual. There would have been many others of whom the commission had no knowledge.

Mr. Carson told the committee the commission is "bending over backwards" to implement promises by former prime minister Lester Pearson that no bilingual public servant will have his career jeopardized.

Regatta Workers Needed To Provide 'New Blood'

The Kelowna International Regatta Association is looking for "workers" to assist directors in planning for the show in August.

Director-General Glenn Lawrence made the appeal at Monday's regular meeting, and asked directors to help in the fight.

"We need your assistance in getting more people."

"There are a lot of new residents in Kelowna and district who may never have heard of Regatta, or those who may have heard about us."

"The population is increasing, and all the volunteers we have, have done so for a number of years."

"He said the organization required "new blood" and that new residents might become involved."

Mr. Lawrence said directors and the association's members, Glen Carleton, were doing some of the organization.

"Regatta's organization is becoming simplified," he said, adding a number of water events had been dropped from "three to four" and that a number of directors had also been eliminated.

"We are co-ordinating the administration into one area under the manager."

His plea came shortly after directors decided to table further discussion to a general meeting to be held possibly in May to sell memberships into the organization.

One proposal calls for the selling of individual and business memberships or shares.

While no prices have been officially quoted, the business membership fee, which is estimated to cost $25, would include a number of services to the businessmen who joined the group.

Directors agreed Regatta needs more members, which Jack Lund said the membership could provide.

Mr. Lund said a membership list "could be used as a resource to get manpower."

He added the promotion for additional members could also be used to give the association more money.

Spring Blood Clinic Seeking 1,500 Pints

The Kelowna branch of the Canadian Red Cross has its big guns primed for its annual three-day Spring blood donor clinic.

The corpulent crush started today at the Anglican Parish Hall and runs until Thursday from 1 to 4 p.m., and 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

This year's target is 1,500 pints and blood donor committee chairman Mrs. Richard Stirling is hopeful residents will respond to the cause with greater attendance to help meet and surpass the spring goal.

The committee is particularly anxious to attract male donors in the 17 and 18-year-old groups, and reminds that boys between those ages can give blood with parental consent, although girls must be over 18 years to donate life-giving plasma.

"Young people are doing a lot this year to promote the campaign," says Mrs. Stirling, including participation from Kelowna Teen Town members.

As in previous years, free transportation during clinic hours and a baby-sitting service will be supplied from 1 to 4 p.m.

Incentives will again be provided through the Olga Horn Memorial trophy and the Kelowna and District Jaycee trophy for highest percentage of eligible donors in a company or service club.

Anyone wishing transportation to the clinic on any specified date is asked to call 2-3320. Mothers with young children should attend the 1 to 4 p.m. clinic to take advantage of baby-sitting facilities provided for their convenience.

Dances Hosted By Teen Town Considered By Regatta Group

Kelowna Teen Town may be able to continue to operate its annual Regatta teen dances in the Memorial Arena during the Friday and Saturday nights of the event.

However, the Kelowna International Regatta Association, at its meeting Monday, told Teen Town officials no decision has been made on what to plan for the arena those two nights.

The association had earlier planned to hold a Bavarian beer garden in the arena during those nights "to give Regatta visitors additional activities."

These activities, directors said were aimed specifically at the adults.

Teen Town Mayor Ken Kreiger told directors Saturday was the most important date for his group.

Friday and Saturday are Teen Town's traditional nights to hold dances.

"By holding the dances those two nights, we offer the teens something to do, and it's something they look forward to," he said.

"They (the teens) are not wealthy, and Friday and Saturday are the days they can attend dances and stay out of trouble."

"If dances are held Wednesday and Thursday or Thursday and Saturday, there is a good possibility they will not succeed," he added.

Mr. Kreiger said if three or four bands are hired to perform per night, success can be assured.

"Depending upon the group, the audience will either dance or sit."

Other events, such as mid-way rides, war canoe races and other water events will not appeal to all groups, he said.

City May Reduce Hall Fee For Special School Event

The city may waive or reduce a $75 fee being charged a group of district secondary school teachers for the use of Centennial Hall to prepare for a gymnastic display next month.

Ald. Walter Green, himself a school teacher, reported Monday night physical education teachers were "shocked" at charges of $150 a night for the arena for two nights, $50 a night for the Centennial Hall, also for two nights, and $75 for the hall while equipment is being brought from schools the day before opening night.

"This is a non-profit group, and the proceeds will help buy athletic equipment for schools," he added. "We should charge them a modest fee."

The rates were revised last year, and council has adopted the attitude that "everybody pays," said city administrator D. B. Herbert.

However, the $75 will be investigated.

Ald. Gwen Holland suggested the school board and city should discuss arrangements for reciprocal use of buildings. Instead of each paying the other.

Ald. Green also mentioned the board was charged $1,200 for moving stands from the Aquatic site in City Park to Exhibition Park, although other groups use them. This will also be studied.

GOVERNMENT SAYS NO BECAUSE OF OPPOSITION

Residents Claim Victory In Marina Battle

Lakeview Heights residents have won their battle to keep a proposed marina and yacht club out of Kalamo Park.

"As a group we feel very pleased that we could get up and say something and have our voices heard," says a jubilant Clive Gilbert, who headed a delegation of three opposing the development at a regular meeting of the Regional District of Central Okanagan March 17.

"Now we'll be able to develop the park as residents want to," Mr. Gilbert said, adding other citizen groups could use the Kalamo Park issue as an example for their own causes.

The reason for Mr. Gilbert's victory is a letter dated March 25 addressed to the Kalamo Park Board, who wanted to lease a 330 by 550 foot strip of park foreshore for rental to Casa Loma Marina Ltd., from director of lands W. C. Fry.

The letter said the board's application for a marina development in the park had been "disallowed" because of supporting objection from the regional district and receipt of a 500-signature petition from area residents.

"It would appear the general feeling is that this private commercial development should not be permitted on, or in front of this public park," the government official stated.

The letter concluded with the warning to the Kalamo Park Board that "any subsequent occupation by you of the area in question will constitute a trespass and liable to such action as considered necessary."

A copy of the letter was forwarded to the Kelowna land inspector, the Vernon land inspector and the administrator of the Regional District of Central Okanagan.

"A few weeks ago they said there was nothing we could do about it," said Mr. Gilbert. He was referring to a meeting of the Lakeview Irrigation District March 8 in which opposition against the marina had been defeated in a 12 to 20 vote.

One of the petitioning delegates at the regional district meeting March 17, Larry Jensen, had declared there had been "no mention" of a marina at the irrigation district meeting.

A subsequent private meeting of Lakeview Heights residents March 10 gained further support leading to eventual circulation of a petition which was signed by 542 residents and mailed to Victoria.

Some of the main objections in the 11-point petition presented to the regional district by Mr. Gilbert included disallowment of commercial development in the park; prevention of pollution, and ecological destruction; and land conservation encouragement in provincial parks.

Mr. Gilbert said his group had also received a letter of support from Recreation and Conservation Minister W. K. Kiernan, stating he was going to "investigate" the matter.

Proposed Frontage Policy Again Deferred By Council

CITY PAGE But Details Finally Bared On Decisions Needed

A policy ultimately aimed at public ownership of most beach property within the city of Kelowna was uncovered for the first time publicly Monday, but quickly deferred for discussion by city council.

The proposed policy was developed within the confines of the city administration led by planner G. P. Stevens, following a request by aldermen late last year.

Council, early this year, voted to defer the matter until following submission of the aquatic replacement master plan. However, the proposed policy, which would have to be agreed to in a vote by aldermen, was never made public.

It calls for the city to continue to acquire waterfront properties "within the city's financial resources and within the city's overall park program and park policy as and when private properties are offered for sale."

Particularly, the policy would direct council toward the acquisition and development of City Park land south from its present location to Vimy Avenue.

It would also direct extension of the park north to Brent's Creek as well as extensions north and south of Kinsmen and Strathcona parks and "other waterfront properties."

The 1970 council sought to have such direction outlined in policy before the acquisition of any more property such as that referred to as the Pollard property, three lots and home purchased for about $60,000.

At a recent meeting, Ald. S. A. Hodge and Ald. Alan Moss sponsored a motion to have the property sold by the city but the motion was tabled and the matter was later deferred for discussion until the return of Ald. Moss from overseas.

Discussion and possible disposition of the policy statement was also deferred Monday until that time, probably at a council meeting April 19.

Further proposed policy within that read Monday was that the city continue to retain the present one-family zoning classification applied to the privately-owned waterfront lands in order to protect the long-term needs of the community for additional public beach park land.

The city would also continue to encourage the development of the area north of the civic square for hotel, motor-hotel and related service facilities and high density apartment uses provided public access to the waterfront is dedicated and developed for the enjoyment of the public.

The policy would also negate a move for the city to sell any of that land already owned as well as working with various other authorities such as the provincial government and the regional district in development of waterfront lands "for public enjoyment."

Adoption of such a policy by council would be guided by the suppositions that one of the prime assets of the city is its public beach property and the amount of this is limited.

A "whereas" within the proposed policy statement also supposes "it is the duty and responsibility of the elected representatives of the city to plan for the preservation, acquisition and development of community facilities and to foster and encourage the co-operation of all citizens, business and industry and all senior levels of government in the furtherance of these objectives."

Narcotics Trial Starts Today Three For Weed Possession

Trials of three youths on narcotic charges started today in provincial court before Judge D. M. White.

Douglas Howell of Kelowna, Thomas Gerard Kelso of Toronto, and Kenneth Obana of Abbotsford, pleaded not guilty to possessing marijuana Feb. 9. The first two are in custody, the third on bail.

Const. J. W. R. Avison, Kelowna RCMP detachment, said he and other officers went to a local motel about 11:30 p.m. Feb. 9. They obtained keys from the management to two rooms. In the first they found the three youths. In the second, reached by a connecting door, they found a marijuana cigarette and a homemade pipe used for smoking the drug.

The officer was the first crown witness.

The youths are also being tried in county court before Judge G. S. Denroche on charges of possessing stolen property.

The judge refused a plea by a lawyer to reduce bail on another youth to an amount the youth could pay himself.

Harold Floyd McFall, who recently came here from Vancouver, is charged with stealing a car in Kelowna March 27. He was stopped in Hope along with two juveniles, one aged eight, the other aged 11. An eight-day remand without plea was given.

A lawyer said he understands the youth has about $700, and suggested $650 bail. However, after listening to the court officer, Const. Douglas Herda, the judge agreed with Const. Herda that $1,000 bail be required.

A man who said he drove early this morning because his companion was drunk pleaded guilty to driving when the alcohol content in his blood was more than .08 per cent. George Gregory MacDonald of Westbank was stopped after police said he went through a red light. He was fined $200 and ruled off the road three months.

William Albert Warren of Kelowna elected trial by judge and jury on a charge of obtaining four tires May 20 with a worthless cheque. The matter was remanded eight days.

Look Forward To Change Fisher Tells Club Meet

A man described as a legend in his own time, John Fisher, told the Kelowna Canadian Club Monday the 1970's "won't be what we think they will be."

Former commissioner of the national centennial administration and winner of the Service Medal in the Order of Canada, the guest speaker said although he could not foresee what would happen in the next decade "it won't be like the sixties."

Approaching his theme, "A Look at Canada in the 1970's" with informal candor and humor, Mr. Fisher told his Capri audience that "all the country needs is a little more enthusiasm" and Canadians "have to do a selling job at home."

"I think Canada still has a good name around the world," he emphasized, adding "Canadians don't really know it." He said if Canada suddenly dropped its immigration fences "there would be such a rush we'd be trampled."

The country, he added, spent "too much time" involved with American problems and did not pay "too much attention to problems of its own."

Mr. Fisher said Canadian problems were "not as awful as some people say" and the close of the decade should decide "who people are and the future of the country." The 1970's would also, he added, determine if the separatist movement in Quebec "is on the rise or not."

Extending his optimism to the younger generation, the guest speaker said they "have a lot going for them" and are "not all bad."

"All they need is a good bath and a spanking," he said. Faced with "some awful problems to solve, both globally and nationally," the generation coming up are "very resilient and better educated," Mr. Fisher told listeners.

They may become known as real practicing Christians," he added.

On the debit side of the younger generation was their lack of historical and aesthetic consciousness, Mr. Fisher reminded, suggesting that by 1990 more than 50 per cent of Canada's population will be under the 25-year-old bracket.

"They haven't been brought up by the things that shaped our lives," and were prone to "take things for granted," the guest speaker said.

Localizing his remarks, Mr. Fisher described British Columbia as having the "most centennial-prone people on the face of the earth."

"You have them here a dime a dozen," he said, adding "you certainly have a lot to shout about."

Since he last visited the Okanagan and Kelowna in 1967, he was "startled" at the growth of "satellite communities" around the city although also noting orchards were "receding."

He described the Okanagan spring as "the same as a poet's spring" adding "we don't know spring except here." His observation that the Prairies "have no spring" engendered polite murmurs of disagreement from the audience.

Relating to the centennial topic again, Mr. Fisher described 1971 as the "hundredth anniversary of B.C. stock-taking" with a special do-it-yourself Canada-wide census by mail beginning June 1.

"The census will tell us where we are and give us some direction on where we should be going," he said, adding the census was "vital to a modern nation such as ours."

Covering cities only, the new census method would be mailed to householders in the form of questionnaires May 23 for completion by computers.

He said once information had been recorded on microfilm, the original forms would be destroyed to protect the secrecy of the sender. Accompanying the forms will be a self-addressed envelope and a pencil.

Information from the census, based on questions worked out over the years with governments, industry, universities and associations, would provide a "whole picture of the country," the guest speaker stressed.

NO FIRES
No fire or accidents were reported Monday by the Kelowna Fire Department. The emergency unit received two routine ambulance calls.

IT HAPPENED IN CANADA

It's Poor Legislation

The provincial government, in its "wisdom," on Friday introduced legislation which would prohibit all advertising of alcoholic drinks and all tobacco. In doing so it is moving directly against the recommendations of its own royal commission which made the sensible suggestion that the liquor ban on radio and TV stations be eliminated.

The government's move is puzzling. It uses as an excuse the fact that it has set up a $25 million dollar fund to fight the ill effects of tobacco and liquor and that it would not be consistent to allow these legal commodities to be "pushed" in view of this action. Using this same argument, it is illogical to suggest that under these conditions it is morally reprehensible for the government itself to make an annual profit of some $65 million on liquor on which it has a sales monopoly in this province? Does the government propose to continue to accept this rather substantial but "tainted" revenue? It will, of course, but this can be nothing less than pure hypocrisy.

If this newspaper thought that the government's ban could be even mildly successful in curtailing the abuse of liquor and tobacco, it would support the move wholeheartedly. However, it does not. And, further, it does not believe it can be effectively enforced. Oh, the liquor and tobacco advertising will disappear from the newspaper, magazines, radio and TV of this province, but it will not disappear entirely. Newspapers, magazines, published outside B.C., will still be coming in while the American radio and TV stations close to the border and reaching this province either directly or by cable will reap a rich bonanza from the action of the government of this province.

Then, too, there is the question of the economic impact of the new legislation. Periodicals such as Time and TV Guide are printed in Vancouver, but now, presumably, will not be able to carry any liquor or tobacco advertising. This could, and probably will, mean that this work will be transferred to another province with a consequent loss of employment in the printing trade in Vancouver.

And, too, the newspapers and periodicals in this province have received three serious blows during the past 10 months. The first was the increase in postal rates, the second the very substantial labor settlements which they were forced to make, and the third is the very severe loss of revenue, resulting from the loss of advertising of legal liquor and tobacco products.

The larger ones, of course, will survive, but many of the smaller ones are seeing their profit margin disappear in one blow from the provincial government. Inevitably, these smaller papers will find it difficult to continue. But the economic result, the unemployment, goes much deeper than this. The advertising agencies, the engravers, and all the other businesses directly and indirectly connected with the advertising business will in some degree suffer. Inevitably, it will mean a reduction in employment of both men and women. The government has struck a deliberate blow at the general economy of this province.

The reason? Ah! There's the question! We cannot accept the government's excuse of moral probity. We cannot, that is, as long as it accepts illegitimate revenue from the liquor and tobacco industries. It has been suggested that this is nothing more than a malicious attempt to strike back at those newspapers which have dared at times to be critical of the government. This we find hard to accept too, because the newspapers which will be most seriously hurt, the little ones, are those which have generally and most enthusiastically supported the Bennett government.

What, then, is left? A political manoeuvre in preparation for an early upcoming general election. A move which will permit the government to shout loud and long during the election campaign: "Look how righteous we are!" But even this ploy is being frustrated already. Both the NDP and the Liberals have rushed to get on the moral bandwagon by shouting "Me, too!"

The Bennett government has been in power since 1952. Broadly speaking it has been a good government and has had a number of achievements to its credit. However, two decades is a long time and governments, and men, get tired. They have used up their ideas, their inspirations, and seek rather frantically for new ideas, anything, to retain their image.

And it is legislation which cannot be completely enforced; legislation which can do no possible service in curtailing the use of either liquor or tobacco; legislation which solidifies the businesses in the hands of the big operators because the little manufacturer has no opportunity to grow; legislation which will send more Canadian dollars into the United States; legislation which will increase unemployment and ring the death knell to some of the smaller businesses in this province. It is bad legislation, born solely of expediency.

Using 'Lost' Water

(Victoria Times)

When any arid part of the United States devises a means of using "lost" water within its own boundaries, the accomplishment is of some importance to Canada. It reduces American pressure on this country for our water, which is not for export.

The reported accomplishment of scientists in a section of Arizona is a drop in the bucket in relation to the over-all problem. Yet it emphasizes the intensity with which some Americans are researching means of meeting fresh water demands.

Two little mountain streams near the town of Tempe have, for years, flowed for two months annually and then dried up. Now they have been encouraged to flow year-round. The water has been made available for the creeks by removing chaparral from the surrounding area.

The roots of this bush draw moisture from a water table customarily four to six feet below the earth's surface. Removal, or control, of the growth leaves the moisture still in the subsoil to drain eventually into the streams. In consequence the stream flow is maintained.

This is a small success in a water-starved region. Yet it is a pilot project of substantial interest and perhaps of more importance as an index of determination to conserve for use supplies now wasted—particularly by pollution, which is a major factor in current U.S. scarcities.

NEWS ANALYSIS

The New Junta In Argentina

By PHILIP DEANE
Foreign Affairs Analyst

The coup in Argentina has changed little except the personnel: one military dictator has fallen and has been replaced by three others who promise a return to democracy as he had promised a return to democracy. Meanwhile the years since Argentina has had a democratic government grow more numerous. It can be said that by now Argentina has less of a democratic tradition to fall back on than a dictatorial one. Argentina became independent of Spain in 1810 through revolution and was first ruled by a junta. There followed a period of rule by various generals who generally won power by force of arms. Even when they were elected, in the early days, they were hardly free from pressure: the first use of the secret ballot was not until 1916 and generals appear with dispiriting regularity as presidents.

Colonels took over in 1943. One of them, Juan Peron, became sole dictator between 1946 and 1955 when he too was overthrown by the military. Since 1955, civilian government did not have much of a chance to get established. It faced, on the one hand, the pro-Peron unions which had received anything they wanted from the dictator, and on the other army officers who had overthrown Peron and wanted the unions suppressed for fear of seeing the dictator brought back to power—the generals who had overthrown Peron feared not for democracy but for their own necks should he return.

power—the generals who had overthrown Peron feared not for democracy but for their own necks should he return.

NO SCHOOL FOR DEMOCRACY

Even when a civilian, elected president holds power, Argentina is no school for democracy. Power, constitutionally, is in the hands of the president. He writes his own legislation, has considerable control over the judiciary, can appoint cabinet members without legislative approval and can proclaim a state of emergency whenever he likes. In other words, the authoritarian rule of a military dictator does not have characteristics that are so markedly different from civilian government to shock the citizens into militant resistance.

Will the generals now in power move Argentina towards a civilian government? It is hard to tell. These are conservative generals who are confessedly worried about the election of a leftist in Chile. They are also confessedly worried about the type of military dictatorship that has emerged in Peru, a leftist, populist dictatorship. Big businessmen and big landowners in Argentina fear the seizure of power by the left. The Argentine labor movement is strong and now that Peron is no longer on the scene, it leans to the left. This too is an argument for the generals to resist a return to the electoral process.

Death Is A Word Seldom Heard In Heart-Transplant Man's Home

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Thelma Russell's husband Louis makes medical history each day he lives. He is the world's longest-living heart-transplant patient.

Mrs. Russell is a slender, attractive woman in her early 40s who, like her husband, still sees the life-giving transplant as a way of restoring their lives to normal.

"We just take it in our everyday stride now," she said as she curled up in a chair in their living room. "It sounds strange, but we really do, although we'll never stop feeling grateful."

"There's no telling what would have happened, what would have happened, about her own life, her children and her husband's operation, she said: "In the back of our minds we know there's always that chance."

Death is a word she seldom uses.

"If something happens, there's nothing we can do about it. If it doesn't, we just go on. It may sound funny, but that's the way it is."

HEART DAMAGED

When Louis Russell's heart was removed Aug. 24, 1968, it was so badly diseased that at least one of his physicians remarked that he had lived so long.

Today, the 45-year-old industrial arts teacher lives what his family calls a normal but hectic life. Besides teaching fulltime, he makes as many as 10 speeches a week, visits his Indianapolis cardiologist three times a week and does repair jobs around his house.

"He's a person who can do anything he wants to do, if he makes up his mind to do it," Mrs. Russell says.

When she was 19, she married Louis Russell in Terre Haute, Ind. Later, they moved to Plainfield, N.J.

After the couple's four children were born, Thelma moved to Indianapolis, 13 miles away, to finish her high school education in night classes.

HAS HEART ATTACK

By the time Thelma was a dress buyer and making monthly buying trips to New York, her husband had had one severe heart attack and other less serious flareups.

coming in the papers, everything he found about heart transplanting he'd cut out and take to the doctor's office," Mrs. Russell said.

"He'd say 'Boy, this would be ideal, to get rid of this old heart,' but he wasn't serious. It was just like talking about flying to the moon. It wasn't something that could happen to us."

In June, 1968, Russell was taken to hospital in Indianapolis. He said later he knew he was dying. But then came the chance for him to go to Richmond for heart surgery at the Medical College of Virginia. A heart transplant was one possibility; another was resecting his own heart.

'HIS DECISION'

"When he asked me about it, I knew this was his decision," Thelma said. "It was his life. I'd just go along with everything he said to do, 'cause after all, we are one, you know."

Nearly a month passed while the doctors waited for a heart donor.

A week later, Russell got his new heart.

"They woke him up at 3 o'clock in the morning to tell him there was a donor," Mrs. Russell said. A 17-year-old boy had died of a gunshot wound in the brain.

"I got to see him that night," Mrs. Russell said. "I walked in and he was wide awake."

"It scared the life out of me. I expected him to be in a coma. 'All I could think of to say was, 'How are you?'"

Last August, Jill Blalberg of South Africa, whose father Philip was the world's longest surviving heart transplant patient when he died in 1969, said heart transplants were not worthwhile.

She said her father's operation had changed his personality.

The Russells vehemently disagree.

"He hasn't changed at all," Thelma Russell said. "He's still his same old self, except that he feels good now and has more time to spend with us."

U.S. Wants Talks With Ottawa About Foreign Investment

WASHINGTON (CP) — State Secretary William P. Rogers has staked out a claim to advance discussions with Canada before any major changes are made in the rules governing foreign investment in Canada.

In an unusual book-length review of United States foreign policy released during the week-end, Rogers devoted a carefully-worded section to U.S. relations with Canada that paid particular attention to Canada's current sensitivity about the role and influence of U.S. investments.

He noted that Revenue Minister Herb Gray is "conducting a major review of Canadian policies on foreign investment," and added:

"When the conclusions of this review have been reached, and if significant new controls or restrictions should be proposed, close consultation between the two governments may be needed."

The implication was clear that the U.S. government would look for talks before any serious changes are implemented.

The reasons were set out in Rogers' own review.

WELCOME INVESTMENT ... "Traditionally, both governments have welcomed the two-way flow of private investments across the U.S.-Canadian border," he said.

"Recently, however, the size and proportion of private U.S. investments in Canada have been a matter of growing concern to many Canadians. Long-term U.S. investments in Canada have grown from about $5,500 million in 1948 to more than $31,000 million at the end of 1969 ($21,000 million in the form of direct investment in productive facilities).

"About 35 per cent of total U.S. private investment in foreign countries is in Canada. On the other side of the ledger, Canadians who invest abroad have been placing most of their funds in the United States—more than $8,000 million at present, of which more than half is portfolio investment."

The secretary's review—440 pages long, including 270 pages of documents—was the first such detailed narrative report since a much more modest one by State Secretary Richard Olney 75 years ago. Rogers addressed his report to the chairmen of the House of Representatives and Senate foreign relations committees in Congress.

It covered the whole spectrum of U.S. foreign policy, including country-by-country analyses of bilateral relations and broader reviews of international problems.

A state department spokesman said the review was not intended to break new ground, only to outline the highlights of international developments during the previous two years and the directions of American foreign policy.

The three-page section devoted to Canada—apart from numerous mentions of that country in other portions of the report—used the curious word "asymmetrical" to describe relations between the two countries.

Although the word could be construed as meaning "lacking in balance" or even "lacking in harmony," a department official emphasized that it referred only to the fact that the United States is "clearly the much larger partner in the exchange."

"For the United States," the report said, "the conduct of relations with Canada, which are very close but in some respect asymmetrical, requires a special degree of understanding, respect, and awareness of the principles of partnership."

Among highlights of Canada-U.S. relations in 1969 and 1970, the report noted negotiations and discussions on pollution, petroleum and general economic, financial and agricultural matters.

"The key to good relations between the two countries, which have developed the largest bilateral flow of trade in the world (some $10,000 million per year in each direction) as well as the world's most extensive mutual exchange of investments, has been maintenance of continuing consultation on all matters of mutual interest."

In other sections of the report, Rogers also recalled these aspects of recent U.S.-Canada relations:

—The recognition by Canada and other countries of Communist China has been viewed as "essentially a matter for each country to decide in the light of its own interests," although the U.S. has "also expressed the view that the interests of the government of the Republic of China (Taiwan), which has played a peaceful and constructive role in the world community, should not be sacrificed."

—The U.S. had protested Canada's decision to alter its fisheries boundaries "as contrary to international law and disruptive of current international efforts to reach agreement on fisheries jurisdiction."

—The U.S. has "welcomed Canada's expressed intention of drawing closer to individual Latin American countries and to selected inter-American institutions."

Lucrative Cargo Drifting Away From Seaway Via Container Ships

OTTAWA (CP) — Lucrative general cargo seems to be drifting away from the St. Lawrence seaway.

As the Canada-U.S. shipping artery for the Great Lakes prepares for another season, the pattern is clear: movement of bulk commodities such as wheat and iron ore continues to go up but more profitable general cargo tonnage steadily declines.

New fashions in cargo handling, specifically the trend to container packaging of general cargo, are the cause.

The long-awaited report on the seaway, submitted recently to Transport Minister Jamieson by D. W. Carr and Associates, put it bluntly:

"By late 1970, there were indications that a significant part of the general cargo moving on the seaway (particularly iron and steel) might be lost to the new container services."

The seaway's main competition for general cargo comes from huge container vessels that transfer shipments from overseas to unit trains at Atlantic ports.

ARROWS ADVANTAGE

This has "drastically narrowed and perhaps eliminated the original cost advantage of inland waterways," said R. R. Cope, vice-president of the Canadian transport commission, in a recent speech.

The Carr report says the seaway faces a stark future, increasingly dependent on "low-valued bulk movements" which are handled mainly by Canadian and U.S. carriers not too concerned about the general cargo decline.

The outlook of ocean-going vessels seems grim, says Capt. John Aspin of the Shipping Federation of Canada.

"Personally, I don't think there will be any 'salles' on the seaway in three years' time."

There were 358 fewer transits by ocean vessels in the seaway last year than in 1969. The totals for 1969 were below the average for the last five years.

But transits by inland vessels increased by 18.5 per cent in 1970 reflecting the increasing amounts of bulk traffic.

The amount of general cargo carried on the Montreal-Lake Ontario section of the seaway has fallen from eight million tons in 1968 to 6.5 million in 1970. Cargo tonnage through the Welland Canal has declined from seven million in 1968 to 5.8 million in 1970.

When the seaway was opened in 1959, there were confident forecasts that general cargo would have a significant slice of traffic. Last year only 12 per cent of the traffic was general cargo.

George Sainsbury, director of economics and research for the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, says the U.S. has always seen the seaway in terms of potential general cargo traffic and Canada has seen it as a way of transporting grain and iron ore—bulk commodities.

But only about 50 per cent of the general cargo in the seaway can be containerized, largely because of the seaway depth. Inland vessels built for the seaway have draughts of about 20 feet while large ocean vessels with a maximum draught of about 38 feet must use the system only partly filled.

Vessels now being built have draughts of about 42 feet.

INTEGRATED SYSTEMS

Canadian National Railways and CP Rail integrated freight systems at Quebec, Montreal and Halifax able to employ unit trains taking cargo directly from huge container ships.

The U.S. St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corp. is looking into ways to meet competition, which includes CNR capacity to serve the American mid-west.

One of these is the barge-carrying LASH (lighter aboard ship) vessel. A mother-ship can drop incoming barges at a port such as Montreal, send them up the seaway and pick them up on their return.

Unless a truly competitive method is found for containerization, Canadian inland ports stand to lose the money-making general cargo market.

Several Ontario ports have valued general cargo at $16 a ton in bringing income to the community while estimates for bulk cargo are as low as $1 a ton.

Park Prepares For Visitors

TERRA NOVA NATIONAL PARK, Nfld. (CP) — Activity is under way at Newfoundland's only national park to prepare the 152-square-mile area for the expected droves of summer visitors.

More than 353,000 persons, a record, visited the park last season to get up camps on its specified grounds, to walk the nature trails or to picnic and just view the landscape of many ponds, forested areas, bogs and the rugged seacoast.

The park operates year-round but superintendent John Bonner says most people still find winter camping, hiking, cross-country skiing, snowshoeing and sightseeing fits to their natures.

He says most Newfoundlanders do not use the park until the summer months.

But the park's summer popularity is the reason for the early start on preparation for a new season.

From July to mid-August last year, the park's 417 camp sites in the Newman Sound area were filled to capacity, and officials have found it necessary to construct a new camping area.

ADD NEW PICNIC AREA

Survey and design work are about completed and the area, containing between 130 and 140 sites, is expected to be available early in the 1973 summer season.

A new picnic area is being created at South West farm and will bring to five the number in the park before the summer season officially opens this year.

Camping is encouraged but Mr. Bonner says few people take advantage of the many lakes. However, officials are studying the possibility of establishing a boating facility within the area.

Bonus Concert On Thursday For New Members In Group

"Driving rhythm, granitic strength, limitless power" were some of the comments by the London Daily Telegraph in reporting on the performance of the brilliant young American pianist, Carl Matthes, who appears in Kelowna Community Theatre on Thursday evening.

This concert, sponsored by the Kelowna Community Concert Association is the final concert of the 1970-71 series and is a "bonus concert" for new members joining for the new season for 1971-72.

Kelowna members are looking forward to seeing and hearing the young California pianist, who has taken great strides toward national and international recognition as an emerging young American virtuoso. Highlighting a very active performance career the last few seasons, have been solo engagements in Carnegie Hall, Hollywood Bowl and the Seattle Centre Coliseum as well as European performances in London and Amsterdam.

Previously Mr. Matthes was featured soloist with the San Francisco Symphony and a participant in the International Music Festivals held in Barcelona, Montreal and in Italy.

In addition to touring extensively for community concerts, Mr. Matthes has been presented on radio and television as well as various university theatres, such as the Baylor University, Waco, Texas, where he received such reviews as, "delicate, sensitive... an artist who can transform a fortissimo tone down to an exquisite singing pianissimo."

In his native California he has been named winner in competitions sponsored by the San Francisco Symphony Foundation and the Young Musicians Foundation among others.

People who wish to take advantage of this concert may obtain memberships by calling concert headquarters at 763-5804 between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.

ANN LANDERS
Mother's Comments Lack Knowledge

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I and our two children were invited to the home of friends. They have children also. The four adults were having conversation concerning world affairs, the stock market, politics and the problem of educating young people today. Their 18-year-old son joined us. (The younger children were in another part of the house.)

I made the statement that I favored sex education in public schools for the following reason: "If parents can't discuss with their children the human body and its functions, such as sexual intercourse and masturbation, they should not object to a qualified teacher dispensing the correct information."

When I verbalized the words "sexual intercourse and masturbation" my hostess gave me such a kick in the ankle I thought my foot would drop off. I was furious with her for kicking me and decided to speak my mind. I said, "I am sorry if I have spoken out of turn but I assumed you regard your son as an adult since you allowed him to join the conversation." She replied in anger, "I do not regard a 16-year-old as an adult. And you should have sense enough to keep your language within acceptable limits, taking into consideration everyone present."

Needless to say, the rest of the evening was stilted and uncomfortable. On the way home my husband said I was out of order and suggested that I telephone the hostess and apologize. I disagreed but said I would do so if Ann Landers thought I should. Do you?—Chicago Reader

Dear Chicago Reader: No, I do not. A 16-year-old boy should be acquainted with the terms "sexual intercourse" and "masturbation" and not be shocked by them. If the boy's mother didn't consider him sufficiently adult to hear those words she should not have permitted him to join the group.

I do hope this lad is getting sex education in public school because he is not learning much at home if his mother's comments are an index to her approach to the subject.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife is 44 years old, a grandmother three times. She is destroying herself the same way her father did—booze and pills.

My mother-in-law shielded her husband for years. He led to his employers, lied to the doctors, lied to neighbors and relatives. She thought she was doing him a favor, but she really helped put him in his grave.

Our two older children left home the minute they were legally able to do so. They couldn't take their mother's drunken rages, her screaming and vomiting, and her passing out. Now that she has started mixing the pills with the booze she is knocked out half the time and I never know when I will find her dead or alive. Three times in the last two years I have had to rush her to the hospital a coma.

Please tell me what to do. This woman is making a nervous wreck out of me and the children. I am only a working man and can't afford expensive doctors. I need some help.—Rope's End be hospitalized. Call your family doctor at once and ask him where she should be taken. I'm sure you recognize the fact that your wife has a strong suicidal tendency and unless she gets treatment soon she will one day achieve her goal.

Dear Ann Landers: I want to thank you for taking a strong stand against hitchhiking. True, there are some nice kids thumbing their way, but a driver can't tell by looking who is "nice" and who is going to stick a gun in his ribs. Aside from the danger to the driver there is also danger to the hitchhiker.

I would like to quote an editorial which appeared recently in the Hartford Courant:

"A survey by Los Angeles police revealed that 222 girls who hitched rides were victims of forcible rape in that city alone. In New Jersey the state police revealed that 302 of 365 known runaways in 1970 traveled by thumbing rides. A spot check in that same state done on 100 persons picked up on the highways showed that one out of every three hitchhikers had a criminal record. About 5 per cent were wanted by the police. Everywhere degenerates are among both hitchhikers and those who pick them up."

You did a real service by printing that column. Thank you.—Connecticut Yankee

Dear Yankee: And you did a real service by sending that supportive material which gave me a second opportunity to make the point. Thank you.

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from Two-Ton Tommy (wife of "Worried In Seattle") was fascinating. I saw myself in that letter because I am also eating myself into the grave. And I am doing it intentionally, as you pointed out. Life has no meaning and I figure I might as well get whatever pleasures I can. Like Tommy, eating is the most fun I have, too.

Although Tommy and I are soul-mates, there's one big difference. He is a man and I am a woman. His wife turned him off years ago and now he hates all women. My husband turned ME off years ago and I hate all men. I don't care if tomorrow never comes. There is nothing to look forward to except three big meals. I'm enclosing my name in case Tommy sees this and would like to meet me for lunch. You don't have to worry about a romance here, Ann. I'm interested in is food.

Dear Tina: Here's your letter, Tina, but I'm not about to advertise your phone number. Maybe all you're interested in is food, but in an audience of 54 million there are bound to be a few kooks who would just love to call you up and talk.

Recent guests with Col. J. D. Gemmill and Mrs. Gemmill of Abbott Street were the latter's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tashereau of Walla Walla, Wash., who were accompanied by their son Reginald, student from the University of Bellingham, enjoying his spring break from studies. Maureen Haskett of Okanagan Mission accompanied them back to Bellingham and from there she will travel to Vancouver to visit before returning next weekend.

Ready for spring after an enjoyable end of the winter break are Dr. A. S. Underhill and Mrs. Underhill who were members of a Caribbean cruise. Other Kelowna couples who enjoyed the cruise included Mr. and Mrs. Jack Elliott of St. Andrew's Drive and the Jim Treadgolds.

Recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rode of Golfview were their son Jack and Mrs. Rode and small daughter Maureen of Toronto. The young couple enjoyed some skiing while here, before going on to the coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Montoy of McTaggart, Sask., were recent guests with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rode, while enroute home to the Prairies after visiting with a daughter at the coast.

A happy reunion was enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Al Salloum of Lakeshore Road, when Mrs. Salloum's sisters, Mrs. Alec Carleton of Swift Current and Mrs. Jim McCullum of Saltcoats stopped off for a week-long visit. The sisters had not seen each other for five years.

Dr. Douglas P. Black and Mrs. Black of Dale Vert, Newfoundland, were recent visitors with their parents, Dr. D. M. Black and Mrs. Black on Lakeshore Road. On their return trip from the coast, the visitors will again make a stopover with their parents on Friday.

Visitors from Edmonton, Alta., with Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Stauffer of Park Avenue were her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sheremeta and little 11-month-old son, Jeffrey and an uncle, A. Farrah. Mrs. Stauffer's mother, Mrs. Mary Sheremeta, who has been visiting here off and on, returned to Edmonton with them.

Off to Spokane this coming weekend to wind up the curling season at the mixed spiel there, are a number of Kelowna couples. One foursome includes Dr. Harold Henderson and Mrs. Henderson and Harold Long and Mrs. Long.

Another foursome off to curl in the Spokane mixed bonspiel are the C. B. Cmoliks and the Les Stacey.

Placebos Used In 'Pill' Tests Show Side Effects Coincidental

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Reports from women of headaches, nausea and nervousness caused by oral contraceptives probably are more coincidental rather than direct drug effects, says a prominent scientist in the field of reproduction.

The true incidence of reported side effects is far less than generally believed, said Dr. Joseph Goldzieher of the Southwest Foundation for Research and Education of San Antonio, Tex.

Goldzieher made the comments in a report on a research paper to the American Fertility Society here Thursday.

He said the findings are the result of a new type of clinical research with oral contraceptive users.

The side effects, the study shows, are present even without medication.

The research study involved 398 women who were given treatment with "pills."

Some of the women were given dummy pills; some were given one of three commercially marketed oral contraceptives; and some were given an estrogen-free experimental "mini-pill" he said.

All of the women who received the dummy pills and many using active drugs were instructed to use other contraceptive protection. This protected the women against pregnancy without revealing which were on the dummy pills. Neither the patients nor the investigators knew who received what medication.

He said some of the conclusions reached were:

—That the frequency of headaches, nervousness and depression during treatment with active drugs was the same as that for the dummy pill.

—That there was no perceptible difference in the systolic and diastolic blood pressure of women on all three types of medication.

—And that the proportion of women who gained five pounds or more over a period of four months was the same whether they were on the dummy pill, the estrogen-free "mini-pill" or commercial preparations.

Goldzieher said the research data doesn't show that oral contraceptive usage is entirely free of side effects and it doesn't say the contraceptives cannot and do not cause side effects.

But, he added, the studies show that most of the complaints reported by "pill" users are coincidental, and are not direct drug effects.

Pilots Heed Pretty Voice From Air Control Tower

SASKATOON (CP) — When Pat Ullicki speaks, a pilot listens. If he doesn't, it could mean his life.

But listening to an air traffic controller's instructions is only common sense. There's another good reason for absorbing every word Pat Ullicki speaks.

It's the voice—a pretty voice to match the looks of the shapely 24-year-old sitting in the control tower at Saskatoon airport.

Miss Ullicki, a native of Winnipeg, is one of 1,800 air traffic controllers in Canada. Only six are women, and she's the first female to call the shots in the Saskatoon air corridors.

Some people might balk at the idea of a young woman giving out instructions to a veteran pilot about to put 100,000 pounds of jet down on a runway. But Miss Ullicki feels a woman can bring some assets to the job.

"It's a generally known fact that a woman's voice transmits better than a man's. Also, I don't know how true it is, but some people say women hold up better under stress."

Three years ago, while working as a secretary for the Canadian Armed Forces in Winnipeg, she spotted a civil service poster advertising for controllers and applied.

"It didn't specify male or female, but I didn't think I would get hired."

She took her basic training at Winnipeg airport and then went to Ottawa for 20 weeks of intensive study. After passing the course she was transferred to Brandon where she soon became aware of the realities of controlling air traffic.

Four days after she received her licence a small aircraft crashed on landing. The pilot was hurt only slightly but the incident made a lasting impression on her.

Miss Ullicki feels that many student pilots haven't as much knowledge as they should have. Sometimes they will become lost on their solo flights and panic.

TALKS THEM DOWN

"All you can do is talk to them until you can talk them down to the ground."

She'd like to learn to fly, but so far has been unable to afford it. However, this could change soon when she is credited with a better grading and begins to earn $8,700 a year. She admits it wasn't easy at first breaking into an almost all-male domain.

"At first I was too busy giving out directions. I let them walk all over me. You toughen up after a while."

"They (pilots) all register surprise if they haven't heard my voice before. Sometimes I get some sly remarks."

It can be a hectic job, she says, especially if the weather is not clear. Small aircraft are difficult to spot even in a light haze.

"You have to be alert all the time. You can't carry on a conversation with two or three people behind you and still do your job."

Her greatest concerns are an aircraft declaring an emergency and poor weather, but she is confident her training will pull her through any situation.

On a clear day Saskatoon airport will have up to 200 takeoffs and landings, most of them by light aircraft. Miss Ullicki's job is to give the pilots various instructions so the traffic won't conflict.

"It's challenging to a girl or a fellow. It's a relatively new field and you can go nowhere but up."

She hasn't any marriage plans but says that if she ever does wed she'll continue to give the orders—in the control tower at least.

Variety Shown In Spring Coats

NEW YORK (CP) — Spring coats never seem quite as important as those for fall but they are always a welcome sight after heavy winter coats and furs are shed.

Probably the most important is the classic trench style with wider shoulders. Then there's the sexy coat with a widened hemline and a fullness from under the back yoke. New and gaining interest is the ankle shell to be worn over a contrast long-sleeved dress or pants. The coat-dress falls into the coat category, too, especially this spring worn with a capelet. And lastly there's a big feeling for capes, mostly long and enveloping.

It's also a spring for the patterned coat as opposed to plain colors. Many are scattered woven-in patterns. And of course many of the coats are worn with pants.

RAINWEAR IS ELEGANT

However, spring also has two main coat themes, rain coats and coat costumes. Rainwear has progressed from the first hot, rubbery coats to absolute elegance and had added the rainproof or weather-resistant feature to many coats.

Bruins Turning All The Tables

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chilliwack Bruins, rated underdogs in their British Columbia Junior Hockey League playoff series with Victoria Cougars continued to turn the tables on the odds-makers Monday night, dumping the Cougars 4-1 to take a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Meanwhile, New Westminster Royals scored two overtime goals to stay alive in their best-of-seven series with Vancouver Centennials, beating the Centennials 4-3 in the best-of-seven series.

Dennis Andersen and Mike Randolph scored two goals for Chilliwack in the first eight minutes of the hard-checking game against the Cougars, coastal division pennant winners.

Larry Davies completed Chilliwack's scoring with two unassisted goals. Greg Robinson got Victoria's only goal.

Victoria goalie Darryl Fedorak stopped 35 shots while Lee Holium turned aside 31 for Chilliwack.

At Vancouver, Jon McCracken's second goal of the night at 3:35 of a 10-minute overtime period proved to be the winner. Jim Dalzell added Royals' insurance marker at 8:54.

Jim Chapman opened the scoring at the two-minute mark and Dave McClellan scored late in the first period to give Vancouver a 2-0 lead.

Dale Craig and Jon McCracken scored for the Royals to tie it 2-2 after the second period.

To this point, Vancouver had outshot New Westminster 36-18 but faced sharp re-minding from Royals' Terry Richardson, who finished the evening with 49 saves.

In the third period, Gord Stewart put Vancouver ahead at 1:13, but 21 seconds later Grant Williams tied it. Royals captain Jim Dalzell made it 4-3 but Ray Todd tied it again at 10:47 to force overtime.

NHL STATISTICS

Ross Race Not The Only Others Are Still Tight

MONTREAL (CP) — While

centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins appears to have a stranglehold on the Art Ross Trophy and the accompanying $1,000 that is awarded annually to the National Hockey League's top scorer in regular-season play, a couple of other races are not so cut and dried.

Despite the fact the Bruins' first-place finishers in the NHL's East Division, lost four straight games last week, Esposito today has 69 goals, including 16 in his last 12 games to go with his 74 assists for 143 points.

That's 10 more than Boston defenceman Bobby Orr, who has 37 goals and 96 assists for his 133 playoff action against Montreal Canadiens next week.

Boston's John Bucyk, a veteran left winger, remained in third place with 112 points, 11 more than team-mate Ken

Hodge. Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks is fifth with 96 points, 15 ahead of Norm Ullman of Toronto Maple Leafs.

But the battle still goes on to see who will be the highest scoring rookie in NHL history, with three players in the thick of it.

They are Jude Drouin of Minnesota North Stars, Gilbert Perreault of Buffalo Sabres and Tom Webster of Detroit Red Wings.

Last week each eclipsed Danny Grant's record 65-point performance with the North Stars in 1968-69 when he won the Calder Trophy.

Drouin was the first to break Grant's mark, earning his 66th point last Thursday against Philadelphia Flyers. Perreault and Drouin now are tied for 18th position in the scoring race with 67 points, one more than Webster.

As the final week of regular-season play starts, New York Rangers' goaltending team of Ed Giacomin and Gilles Villeneuve holds an eight-goal edge over Chicago's Tony Esposito, Gerry Desjardins and Gilles Meloche in the Vezina Trophy race.

Each team has three games remaining, and should the Rangers' combination win the award, it would be the first Vezina Trophy victory for the New York squad since 1939-40 when Dave Kerr won it.

EMILE FRANCIS ... Bruins in trouble start. The opening round, for example, has four games in five nights with one day off for travel. The Rangers will work out on that travel day before flying to Toronto.

"I think the Canadiens will beat Boston," he said Monday.

Hadfield's reasoning is that the Bruins have not prepared themselves properly for the playoffs.

"One Boston player told me they've been holding optional practices for the last few weeks," said Hadfield. "I don't think you can get ready for the playoffs that way."

ATTACK WON CROWN

The Bruins powered their way to the East Division crown with an awesome attack that has produced four players with more than 100 scoring points.

Headed by Phil Esposito, whose 69 goals are 11 more than the former single season record.

Once they nailed down the division crown, though, they started resting superstar defenceman Bobby Orr for long stretches and have lost four straight games after dropping just 10 all season before that.

Orr will return to full-time duty Wednesday night.

"I think they've made a mistake," said Hadfield. "You can't turn it on and off like that," he said, snapping his fingers.

The Rangers, on the other hand, have had either a game or a workout every day for the last two weeks and that's a schedule Emile Francis, coach and general manager, plans to continue even after the playoffs.

SOCCER REGISTRATION

A juvenile soccer registration will be held for Winfield, Okanagan and Okanagan Centre today at George Elliot Secondary School between 6:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Boys must be accompanied by a parent.

Nanaimo Takes Bantam Title

VICTORIA (CP) — Nanaimo Clippers, down 4-1 going into the third period, rallied for a 5-4 win over North Kamloops to capture the British Columbia Bantam Hockey championship in suburban Saanich Monday.

Nanaimo finished the three-day, six-team round-robin tournament with four wins and a tie.

One point behind with four wins and a loss was Prince George and third with three wins, a tie and a loss was North Shore of Vancouver.

Cranbrook finished fourth, Trail was fifth and North Kamloops, winless in five games, finished sixth.

Canada's New Satellite Heads Into Final Checks

OMPOC, Calif. (CP) — Canada's latest space satellite, a 10-ton satellite, is being checked out by a team of scientists and engineers at the Goddard Space Flight Center in Maryland. The satellite, known as Alouette II, is being prepared for launch by the U.S. rocket ship, a Saturn V, in the next few days. The satellite is being launched by the U.S. rocket ship, a Saturn V, in the next few days. The satellite is being launched by the U.S. rocket ship, a Saturn V, in the next few days.

LEGISLATIVE SCENE

Joey Wants Debate Ended On His Interim Supply Bill

by THE CANADIAN PRESS
Premier Joseph Smallwood is to make a move in the Newfoundland legislature today to close debate on his government's record $99,780,000 interim supply bill. The motion, which can't be debated under the legislature's standing orders, would invoke a rule to limit speakers to 20 minutes and end the debate by 2 p.m. Elsewhere across the country, the right to vote in the Nova Scotia legislature, the Saskatchewan government got second reading for bill placing teachers and trustees under compulsory arbitration and Premier Harry Strom topped a hint in the Alberta legislature that he will announce changes in his cabinet Wednesday. At St. John's, the Newfoundland house voted 21 to 6 to allow R. Smallwood to give notice of a motion. Earlier in the day, Opposition leader A. J. Murphy (PC-St. John's Centre) and John C. Osoble (Ind Lib-St. John's East), leader of a three-man reform group, said they would be willing to vote for a motion. Interim supply provides funds to pay government expenses, including payrolls, between the end of the fiscal year and the approval of the budget. The fiscal year ends Wednesday and the debate started last Thursday. In the Nova Scotia house, the bills proposed by Minister of Finance William Gillis will allow British subjects to continue to vote in municipal elections only for a five-year period ending in December, 1975. After that time, only Canadians by birth or naturalization would have the franchise. Saskatchewan government members voted 25 to 22 to give approval in principle to amendments to the Teacher Salary Agreement Act. The proposed legislation would give the education minister the authority to send the dispute to compulsory binding arbitration, said Education Minister J. C. McIsaac. Premier Strom told the Alberta house he hopes to make an announcement Wednesday after Hugh Hornor (PC-Lac Ste. Anne) asked which minister will be responsible for the proposed Hospital Services Commission. The commission is part of a government reorganization program which will establish a new department of the environment and a new department of culture, youth and recreation, merge the departments of health and social development and eliminate the provincial secretary's portfolio. The Alberta house also gave second reading to a bill reducing the age of majority in the province to 18 from 21.

Special P.O. Agency Planned To Deal With Modern 'Mob'

TORONTO (CP) — The Quebec government will set up special agencies to deal with modern crime, organized crime and violence—the three "modern forms of crime"—says Justice Minister, the province's justice minister. In his first public address outside Quebec since assuming the job, Mr. Choquette said today the special agencies, under direction of his department, would gather inside information on terrorists and organized crime and co-ordinate efforts of police forces in fighting these areas of "contemporary criminality." "Democratic institutions must rely on their efficiency, their ability to deal with these modern forms of crime," to sustain the morale of the populace and to prove that democracy is viable, he told the Board of Trade Club of Metropolitan Toronto. "Traditional measures of law enforcement are not sufficient" to deal with these modern criminal activities. The ability of their perpetrators to continue operation creates the "appearance" if not the reality of a breakdown in the judicial system. The need to preserve the appearance as well as the fact that institutions are functioning adequately was "one of the biggest challenges to modern government."

Mobile Owners 'Need Grant Too'

VICTORIA (CP) — New Democratic Party and Liberal members of the legislature said today mobile home owners should receive the provincial home-owner grant. The comments came during debate on second reading of a bill setting out a schedule of rates for mobile home units, to be collected by trailer park operators and passed on to the government as taxes. Ernie Hall (NDP — Surrey) said until mobile home owners receive the $170 grant on their property "we shall have not only second-class citizens but third-class citizens." Liberal leader Patrick McCrear said mobile home owners deserved the grant perhaps more than other types of home owners because in many cases they were "laming the frontier" and bringing substantial revenue to the government. Earlier, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said he thought municipalities and regional districts should improve the situation of mobile home areas where in many cases conditions were overcrowded and unsatisfactory. Robert Strachan (NDP — Cowichan-Malahat) agreed that mobile homes were often "lamed by check by law" but said the general conditions would only improve if these areas were regarded as normal residential areas for taxation purposes.

pared with the 10 on ISIS I. It has the same big Canadian-designed fish pole antennas that ISIS I used to reach out for more information about the ionosphere. The biggest one stretches 240 feet from the satellite, a smaller one 62 feet. They extend in the same manner as a collapsible tubular fishing rod or telescope after the satellite has achieved its orbit—about 750 nautical miles up in the case of the latest ISIS. Each of the Canadian ionospheric satellites has been designed to add a new dimension to what the previous three have discovered and still are reporting back to earth. Orbits are planned so the satellites, while covering new areas of the ionosphere, also will at times overlap the space areas of others in the series, providing a comparison basis for scientists.

CHECKS PARTICLES

ISIS-B will report on particle movements within the ionosphere belt, electron and ion temperatures and density and listen for any radio-type signals of natural origin within the belt. There also are a couple of light-measurement experiments. Alouette I was followed by a second and more sophisticated Alouette II, then ISIS I. The latest ISIS — the name stands for International Studies for Ionospheric Studies — carries 12 experiments compared with the 10 on ISIS I.

ON THE PRAIRIES

Gardiner Nominated

REGINA (CP) — Wilf Gardiner, fired two weeks ago as director of Saskatchewan Homecoming '71 after defying Liberal Premier Ross Thatcher, was nominated Monday to contest the constituency of Regina-Northeast for the Liberals in the next provincial election.

FUND PROPOSED

EDMONTON (CP) — Ray LaPlante, Alberta's minister of industry and tourism, introduced in the legislature Monday a bill which would set up a $10 million industrial incentives fund. The fund would make loans available to manufacturing industries for up to one-third of the cost of a plant or $500,000, whichever is less.

HEARINGS OPEN

SASKATON (CP) — Hearings of a civil counter suit involving claims that volumes of the British Columbia Centennial directory fell apart because of poor bindings opened here Monday. Western Canada Directories is suing Midwest Litho and Midwest is suing Modern Press and Western Canada Directories.

CO-OPERATION NEEDED

EDMONTON (CP) — Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield said Monday Canada could get a badly-needed national building code if business, labor and government would co-operate. Varying standards across the country add unnecessary costs, paperwork and trouble to any building job, he told the Edmonton Construction Association. He said the initiative for such a code must begin with the federal government.

Bomb Hits N.Y. Reds

NEW YORK (AP) — An explosion outside the Communist party headquarters early today blew in the front door and shattered several windows. There were no reports of injuries. Minutes before the blast, an anonymous male telephone caller told The Associated Press: "The Communist party building has just been bombed. Let our people go. Never again."

The bombing, the voice said, was so that the "tools and lackeys" will know that "they too are responsible for actions of those who they support." "Never again" is the slogan of the militant Jewish Defence League which has conducted a variety of protests over alleged Soviet repression of Russian Jews.

BRIGHTENS SUITE
CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Thyra Thomson, secretary of state, says her staff adjusted well to the advent of the pantsuit in the Capitol, but was a bit skeptical when she announced recently her office would be painted with three-foot-wide horizontal orange and yellow stripes. Mrs. Thomson says the idea is to brighten up the suite inexpensively. A painter tried out the idea in a back room and Mrs. Thomson says the experiment made believers out of her staff.

MUSICALLY SPEAKING

A Pleasant Way To Spend Sunday

By BETHEL STEELE

This is Community Concerts' campaign week during which it is hoped enough memberships will come in to ensure the added fourth concert for the coming season. Over the years the Okanagan has been one of the favored areas in that because of the proximity of Vernon, Penticton, Kamloops and Kelowna any concert series offering reciprocity to fellow members has provided fine performing arts entertainment fare. It means that CC members have at least 16 concerts available not counting those far afield. For example numerous Kelowna residents this year, having CC membership cards, were able to attend concerts in California, Arizona and Texas to name but a few, as well as those in Vancouver and Washington state. And remember all this at no extra cost. All that is necessary... show your membership card, then wait the courtesy time required before entering the recital hall. Personally I have done very well with reciprocity except for the one artist I have been waiting years to hear, the Israeli pianist Bar-Ilan, considered without peer in some areas of the piano literature. The Sunday he played in Vernon was the day of the big snow storm. Just too much for me as there was no guarantee the roads would be properly plowed and sanded. Perhaps we can get him here another year since those who did manage the trip still rave about him. The CC executive have put a hold contract on three outstanding presentations for next year. William Walker, leading baritone Metropolitan Opera, the Beaux Arts Trio and the Lee Evans Trio. The last named should please the younger crowd since it is made up of piano, bass and percussion, specializing in the highest standards in up-beat pop favorites. The Beaux Arts Trio is famous in the classical field and Kelowna is lucky to be able to have them. William Walker is well known to the Johnny Carson show so any one to whom cable is available will be familiar with this fine musician. Mr. Walker is a top ranking artist and is coming to us because he wants to fish in the Okanagan—so you see we are as famous in our own way as he is in his. Another point the executive wishes to stress is the fact that Thursday night in the Community Theatre Carol Matthes, pianist, will present the final concert for the current season. Memberships for next year may attend this performance as a bonus without extra cost. Campaign workers are out. Headquarters is at Capri Motor Hotel in the lobby. Sunday afternoon, April 4, in the Community Theatre the Okanagan Symphony Orchestra will present its spring concert. Highlights of the concert will be the Nelson Mass by Haydn as presented by the Okanagan Symphony Choir with the symphony conducted by Leonard Camplin. The choir of 40 voices directed by Jocelyn Pritchard of Vernon was organized in 1970 for the purpose of rendering major choral works, something that has been sadly lacking as a sustaining factor in the Valley for many years. Soloists for the Mass will be soprano Valerie Witham of Vernon, contralto Wilma Hartley of Kelowna, tenor Pat Kines of Armstrong and baritone Don Krause of Kamloops. Twenty-five players from the Vancouver Metropolitan Orchestra will join the Valley group for the three concerts in Penticton, Vernon and Kelowna. The combined symphony will perform the Vivaldi Concerto Grosso in D major, Schubert's Unfinished Symphony and the first movement of the Sibelius symphony No. 3 in C major. The latter should be a treat. A break away from the regular symphony repertoire. Yes... I am looking forward to the Mass and the Sibelius. See you all next Sunday at the symphony. What a nice sound that is and what a lovely way to spend Sunday afternoon.

Couple Stole Credit Cards And Both Jailed For 2 Years

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — A couple who used two stolen credit cards to obtain $938 in cash and goods were sentenced to two years each Monday. Bruce Bailey, 21, and Judi Bailey, 29, were convicted on counts of uttering, fraud and possession.

'Drink' Poisons Agassiz Convicts

AGASSIZ, B.C. (P) — Two inmates of the Agassiz Mountain Prison died Monday after they drank shellac, which contains methyl alcohol, at the prison. John Thomas Bendell, 50, and Vernon Levy, 41, died in hospital in Vancouver. A prison spokesman said inmates are allowed small quantities of shellac and paint thinners for work on hobbies. He said no other prisoners were believed involved.

DAMP MEMORIES

LONDON (CP) — Relics dating back to the 1920s were dredged from Kensington Garden park's Round Pond when it was drained for the first time in 40 years. Among the finds were the wrecks of several generations of small boys' model boats, some army tin hats tossed in by celebrating soldiers at the end of the war and an old sceptre from a nearby statue of Queen Victoria which is regularly raided by pranksters.

LEGISLATURE AT A GLANCE

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Herb Capozal (SC — Vancouver Centre) and Ernie LeCours (SC — Richmond) voted with the NDP and Liberals against legislation giving pension increases to retired teachers. NDP members urged the government to give mobile home owners the provincial home-owner grant. Gordon Dowling (NDP — Burnaby — Edmonds) said it was "ridiculous" that a lawyer coming to B.C. from England should have to wait five years before he could practise, as proposed in new legislation. Second reading was given to bills banning tobacco and liquor advertising in B.C.

BIOLOGICAL WARFARE
EDINBURGH (CP) — Students at Edinburgh University claim that if a girl wants a happy marriage she should steer clear of biologists. A survey by the students showed that the marriages of one in eight biologists end in divorce. In contrast, the students found that art scholars are a safe marital bet.

HEFTY HELP
LONDON (CP) — A special school for fat girls is to be opened later this year. Thirty girls aged 12 and 13 will be selected by school doctors to attend a three-week course to help them slim. A spokesman for the Inner London Education Authority said the school's purpose was to prevent fat girls becoming "social outcasts."

CUPID'S ARROWS

SHINWELL, England (CP) — Four ladies, representing the Black Boy pub's darts team, scored twice too often—two of them became pregnant and couldn't take part in the Berkshire darts final. Publican Arthur Crisp noted that it was the sixth time in 10 years "the bumps" had intervened at a vital time. "It must be something to do with the beer," he said.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Mar. 21 to Apr. 20 (Aries) — Your high goals are not so remote. A little extra "push" could bring them nearer.

Apr. 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Your tendency toward excessive volatility could irritate others. Simmer down!

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Don't fret over certain complex situations. You can cope — and handily.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Place your own interest first if you have to cope with unreliable persons.

July 24 to Aug. 23 (Leo) — Curb your innate aggressiveness now. Try more subtle tactics.

Aug. 24 to Sept. 23 (Virgo) — A new romance for the single is indicated. Await happiness for the married.

Sept. 24 to Oct. 23 (Libra) — Don't make mountains out of molehills. Take minor delays in stride.

Oct. 24 to Nov. 22 (Scorpio) — Benefits indicated, but some may not be obvious. Take a look around.

Nov. 23 to Dec. 21 (Sagittarius) — Some trends changing. Pick your way carefully—but not anxiously.

Dec. 22 to Jan. 20 (Capricorn) — Care needed in routine matters. Make no drastic changes arbitrarily.

Jan. 21 to Feb. 19 (Aquarius) — A good day for capitalizing on unusual ideas—especially if creative in nature.

Feb. 20 to Mar. 20 (Pisces) — You may face some criticism, but listen carefully: It could prove helpful.

Astroprospects—This should be an interesting day. Those who put their best efforts into all endeavors, whether job-connected or personal, should meet with gratifying success. Along occupational/business lines, it will be a fine day for seeking favors from superiors, also to really get launched on pet projects. On the personal score, domestic interests are especially favored. Plans made for refurbishing the home or for entertaining at week's end should work out exceedingly well.

Farmers In Need Of Gas Masks

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Our son, a farmer, 48 years old, was taken to the hospital last fall by ambulance for serious breathing difficulty and coughing.

He was taken to the intensive care unit and given oxygen and fluid in his veins.

The doctor said his trouble was caused by silo gas—he had just finished filling two silos.

We are told that farmers are advised to wear gas masks when it is necessary to work around silos, but nobody knows where to buy them. Can you tell us? Many would like to know before the next silo-filling season.—Mrs. H.U.

Silo-filler's disease is caused by inhaling nitrogen dioxide, a product of decomposition of silo material. It can cause acute bronchitis—so severe that it can be fatal, and a person who has suffered from inhaling this gas should be observed for several weeks following the accident.

As to where to get a gas mask, I'm afraid I'm no authority.

Doubtless somebody among the readers of this column will have the answer, and if I will send the information to me, I'll get it in print before the next silo-filling season is upon us.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband has been a diabetic for six or seven months. Can he eat honey in small amounts? Isn't honey good for the nerves? Isn't he neuritis very bad.—Mrs. J.M.S.

Honey is mostly sugar, and sugar is what a diabetic can't handle efficiently, so, no, he shouldn't eat honey. (Honey will not do a bit of good for his neuritis anyway.)

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have difficulty staying awake in church and find if I take two stay-awake pills I have no difficulty. I also have taken them occasionally when driving at night. Will they have any harmful effect on a person? — Mrs. G.L.

The active ingredient in your pills is caffeine, and the amount is about the same as that in a cup of strong coffee.

Generally speaking, caffeine is not harmful—although some people are sensitive to it, and the result is nervousness, restlessness, inability to sleep.

But when I say it isn't harmful, that's a far cry from saying that I recommend using pills to stay awake. They do not take the place of getting adequate rest. When (as in driving late at night) a person gets tired and sleepy, nature is telling him he needs some rest. Taking pills to keep going is merely circumventing nature's instructions.

Therefore, certainly getting in the habit of depending on such pills is not good.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am planning on getting married soon and would like information about douching as a birth control method.—Miss G.

It is not a reliable method for that purpose.

Opening lead—ten of diamonds.

You get to bad contracts once in a while, and the best you can do is give them the old college try and hope the gods will be kind.

Certainly it is hard to blame South for getting to six after his partner had opened with a club and immediately raised two hearts to three.

Had West led a spade, the slam would surely have failed, but West made the more South lead of a diamond. South saw at once that he was far from a favorite to make the contract, but he also saw that the situation was not altogether hopeless.

He won the diamond with the ace, crossed to dummy with a trump, and played a low club. In the actual case, East rose with the king and the outcome was that South was later able to discard two spades on the A-Q of clubs and thus bring home the slam.

Note that declarer would also have made the hand had East followed low on the club lead from dummy. In that case South would win with the jack, play the seven of clubs to establish the queen as a trick. South would lose only a spade trick on this method of play.

Note also that South would unquestionably have gone down had he started the clubs by leading one from his hand towards dummy. Declarer had shrewdly calculated that a club finesse, even if it was a would not salvage the situation, and that his only real chance was to reject the finesse in the hope that East had the king.

Fiscal Brakes On Economy 'Should Now Be Relaxed'

OTTAWA (CP) The government should relax the fiscal brakes on the economy by cutting both personal income and corporation profits taxes, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce recommends here.

A. Gordon Archibald, president, said further impetus needs to be given to renewed economic expansion to put it on the path of sustained economic growth for 1972.

The chamber said in a brief that economic prospects for the early part of 1971 are bright, with strong exports, inventories to be built up, and some catching up in industrial plant and equipment expansion following last year's slump.

But to sustain this for another year, the country needs more tax relief. The chamber said it would prefer this kind of impetus to a further increase in government spending.

The chamber also advocated reverting to the pre-1969 schedule of corporation tax payments. Starting then, taxes on corporation profits had to be paid at an earlier date. Reverting to the former schedule would leave more money temporarily in the hands of corporations, and it could be used for expansion.

The brief was the chamber's usual pre-budget submission to Finance Minister Edgar Benson. Mr. Benson plans a budget this spring, but has not yet decided on the date, or whether it will be coupled with the government's proposed sweeping revision of the Income Tax Act.

The chamber also recommended reduction of the 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials at a scheduled rate, grants to private industry for on-site job training for the unemployed, and further tax relief for investment in anti-pollution measures.

The government should emphasize in its next budget the country's need for foreign investment, the brief added. It said the chamber is dismayed by the view of some private and public officials that Canada should buy back or even take back foreign-owned interests in Canada.

The government should also work towards repegging the Canadian dollar somewhere below its present level of near parity with the U.S. dollar. The dollar was pegged at 92.5 cents in U.S. funds until last June. But the chamber said it would not oppose letting the dollar float on international exchange markets until 1972 if that is necessary to avoid pegging it at too high a rate.

Canada To Send 333 Athletes To Pan-Am Games In Colombo

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada will send its largest contingent of athletes ever assembled for a Pan-American Games to Cali, Colombia, July 30-Aug. 13.

Robert Osborne of Vancouver, vice-president of the Canadian Olympic Association and chief de mission for the Can-Am team, said Monday the Canadian group will consist of 333 athletes, 37 officials, a 17-member medical team and 22 headquarters personnel.

The Canadians will compete in all 19 sports on the program. Included in the program of sports are: cycling, fencing, field hockey, gymnastics, athletics, boxing, baseball, basketball, equestrian, rowing, shooting, soccer, swimming and diving, synchronized swimming, water polo, volleyball, wrestling, weightlifting and yachting.

Athletes and officials living east of Winnipeg will gather in Toronto for a July 24 departure, while the remainder of the Manitoba capital are scheduled to leave from Vancouver on the same date.

Osborne said a third chartered aircraft will be used to transport the 12 horses used by the equestrian team, three yachts, 1,250 pounds of ammunition and other equipment.

UNEARTHLY FORTRESS — MOSCOW (AP) — Amateur folklorist Juozas Micklavicius unearthed the 900-year-old fortress of a legendary Baltic chieftain, the Soviet news agency Tass reported. The agency said Micklavicius found hatchets, metal arrowheads, swords and fragments of pottery at the site in Lithuania near the Baltic Sea.

SEE HERE, SAWYER! ARE YOU IMPLYING THAT THIS SWEET, INNOCENT GIRL IS IN CAHOOTS WITH DREWS IN THE MURDER OF MY FATHER?

IMPOSSIBLE! SHE SAID SHE NEVER SAW DREWS UNTIL SHE CAME TO THE LODGE, AND I BELIEVE HER.

THE TRUTH, BOBBY, IS SHE RAN AWAY WITH DREWS THREE YEARS AGO, DESERTING HER HUSBAND OF OVER TEN YEARS. YOUR FATHER!

MY FATHER?

'MISS' GARD, BOBBY, IS YOUR STEP-MOTHER!

HERE'S THE FIVE DOLLARS I OWE YOU, DAGWOOD, AND THANK YOU

BUT HERB, YOU OWE ME TEN DOLLARS!

WELL, IF THAT'S THE WAY YOU FEEL, GIVE ME BACK THE FIVE AND FORGET IT!

GEE, HE CERTAINLY IS TOUCHY!

YOU THINK ALEX NOVA IS SERIOUS ABOUT GRABBING OFF A REAL COUNTRY FOR HIS OWN PRIVATE AMUSEMENT, OWEN?

HIS WHIMS WOULD MAKE OTHER MEN'S FIRM RESOLUTIONS LOOK LIKE FUTILE DAYDREAMS. HE WANTS ALGOVA? ALGOVA HAD BETTER WATCH OUT!

MY PEOPLE LIVE BY TOURISM, MR. NOVA—AND ANY SUGGESTION THAT YOU'LL ABANDON THEIR INCOME SHOULD BE MOST WELCOME!

GEE! AM I POPULAR!

WHY WHAT A ROMANTIC MOON!

LET'S GO OUT UNDER IT, GLORY-BEE!

IT'S SO BRIGHT OUT WE CAN PLAY CROQUET!

...THEN A DASH OF TABASCO SAUCE...AND JUICE OF ONE LEMON...

BAR-B-QUE SAUCE?

STIR IN CORNSTARCH AND FLOUR TO MAKE A PASTE...

IT'S A SKIN-FOOD PACK!

WELL, UNLESS YOU WANT ME TO STAY AND BASTE YOU, I'LL TAKE THIS FOR A HAM I'M BAKING!

WOW!

LOOK! LETTERS FROM MY BOY FRIENDS!

PEN PALS!

GEE! A WHOLE STACK OF GUYS' PICTURES!

TAKE YOUR PICK!

SOUNDS LIKE A MAKE ORDER!

WHILE YE WUZ GONE OFF, AUNT LOWEZY—TATER GOT IN YORE PANTRY AN' BUSTED A JAR OF PEACH BUTTER, POURED SORGHUM INTH' CORN MEAL AN' ET A WHOLE JAR OF PICKLED BEETS AN'.

BALLS O' FIRE!! I TOLD YE TO WATCH THAT YOUNG-UN

I WUZ WATCHIN' HIM!! THAT'S HOW I SEEN WHAT HE DONE

AHA! THE SUM OF THE ANGLES OF A TRIANGLE IS 180°! SO THERE!

OH! OH! OH!

WHAT'S THE MATTER, ELLI?

I'M SO SMART, SOMETIMES IT SCARES ME!

SPEC Has Praise For School Students

RUTLAND — The secretary of the anti-pollution group, the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control Monday lauded Rutland Secondary School students for their participation in the Saturday canvass of local homes for empty pesticide containers.

Mrs. Frances Gilstead called the participation of the 110 students in the door-to-door canvass "tremendous."

The SPEC official also congratulated the 14 Rutland Secondary School teachers who joined in the drive.

"We were very pleased with the energy everyone showed in helping with the canvass," said Mrs. Gilstead.

The SPEC secretary said over one ton of empty pesticide containers were collected in the Saturday drive. Over half of these came from Rutland.

Citizens from Kelowna were asked to take their empty pesticide containers to a collection depot at the arena parking lot on Ellis Street. Rutland was the only area that received blanket door-to-door coverage in the SPEC drive.

Mrs. Gilstead said it was the first time any such "blanket coverage" had been undertaken in the area. She said the success of the Saturday canvass might lead to others.

Pot Luck Parish Supper Held By St. Margaret's

PEACHLAND (Special) — Ivor Jackson, rector's warden of St. Margaret's Anglican Church, welcomed the good turn out of parishioners at the pot luck parish supper held Friday evening at the recreation hall.

Welcomed as special guests were Canon and Mrs. Robert Brown from Kelowna, Rev. Donald Kidd from Mission and Rev. and Mrs. Paul Robinson from Kelowna and guest speaker of the evening, Allan W. Bilsland and Mrs. Bilsland from Westbank.

Entertainment of the evening was provided by four boys and four girls, members of St. Margaret's Sunday School, who, in their first skit took the guests back to the days before the white man came to the Okanagan, by acting out an Indian tale narrated by their director, Mrs. W. L. Lawrence.

Second offering of the players was the old time drama, "Sob, Sob, Sob."

Following the entertainment Mr. Jackson expressed the appreciation of the company to the ladies of the ACW for the delicious meal arranged for by them and called upon W. L. Lawrence to introduce the guest speaker.

Mr. Bilsland gave an amusing sketch of Mr. and Mrs. Newcomer meet the Anglican prayer book. This humorous narrative amused all.

His talk ended in a more serious vein when he told his listeners to welcome newcomers in your midst and always follow the Lord's commandment "Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself." The evening ended with Rev. Robinson leading the closing prayer.

RUTLAND (Special) — Guest speaker at the federation meeting of the Dorcas Welfare Societies of the Okanagan Valley was W. E. Kuester from Osoyoos, Ont. Pastor Kuester is director of the Seventh-day Adventist welfare services for all of Canada.

The convention was held in the Rutland Adventist Church with W. W. Rogers, British Columbia director, leading out, assisted by Mrs. F. H. Wagner, president of the Okanagan Federation.

Pastor L. Astleford, who spent many years as a missionary in the West Indies and Africa, gave an interesting study. He made a trip recently to the Yukon and northern British Columbia. He urged the Dorcas workers, if they had surplus clothing or bedding, to send it to the Yukon to help some of the needy there.

An animated skit was presented by the ladies on the needs of different groups and ways to help them. Forty suggestions were made. Some of them were: cooking classes, home nursing instruction, sewing, quilt making, canning and preserving fruit and vegetables, visiting the homes for the aged, assisting burnt out families and caring for foster children. One society had seven homes where foster children were cared for.

Already classes in cooking and nutrition have been held. A five-day plan to stop smoking will be held in May. Many other plans were suggested to help in the communities where they live.

Pastor W. W. Rogers hopes that by next year he can have a disaster van fully equipped and stocked for emergencies such as are being used in the Southern States.

A delicious pot luck lunch was served to all.

The next federation meeting will be held in October at Grandview Flatts, near Armstrong.

Mr. Marshall said it has been suggested the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals might be solicited to cope with the community's stray dog blues.

Currently there is no dog catcher in Rutland and virtually no one with any authority to do something about stray dogs running in packs through the community.

The RCMP can insist an unlicensed dog be licensed, but it has no power to impound.

Rutland's representative on the board, Mel Marshall, told the chamber "the district is nearing a solution to this problem."

But he said a letter from the chamber asking for regional help to deal with the problem "wouldn't hurt".
